BIC Codes and ILU Codes

ILU codes become mandatory starting July 2014

By definition:
ILU marking is European, BIC marking is global

The BIC marking is not restricted to maritime freight containers

As prevailing before the implementation of the ILU marking, any kind of equipment can be freely operated in Europe carrying a BIC ISO marking
Convention for Safe Containers

ACEP program, inspection of containers

To support industry needs and the necessity for National Administrations to make the list of their ACEP publicly available as requested by IMO, The BIC has developed a global database of ACEP numbers.
The BIC provides the BIC codes database under an electronic format to CUSTOMS’ administrations and UNODC.

The database is integrated in the Customs’ risk assessment systems and UNODC’s training programs.
